Sudip Bose, MD, FACEP, FAAEM, Represents Texas with Inclusion into Renowned Publication The Leading Physicians of the World

The International Association of Healthcare Professionals has carefully selected Sudip Bose, MD, FACEP, FAAEM, to represent emergency medicine in their publication, The Leading Physicians of the World. Dr. Bose's selection is a significant representation of his passion and dedication for the field of emergency medicine. He is considered to be among the best throughout his many years in practice.

Dr. Bose has multiple fields of interest in the world of healthcare: He is an emergency medicine physician, healthcare educator, and veteran advocate. Currently an attending emergency medicine physician at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa, Texas, Dr. Bose has practiced at some of the busiest emergency rooms in Texas and Chicago. His website, The Battle Continues, is devoted to his lectures educating the public about veteran healthcare and his own experiences as a Major in the United States Military. He served a 15 month tour in Iraq and won a Bronze Star for his efforts in the field.

On the educational forefront, Dr. Bose was responsible for the creation of a leading NCLEX review course for the nursing board exam, is Founder of several top ranked medical education companies, and created the LLSA prep for emergency medicine physicians. He also assists physicians with licensing in the State of Texas as part of Texas Jurisprudence Prep. An Associate Professor at the University of Illinois, Dr. Bose also serves as a medical correspondent for a weekly CBS segment discussing medical and personal health issues as well as a medical expert for the Dr. Oz show. From treating Saddam Hussein shortly after his capture to the citizens of Odesa as their Medical Director, Dr. Bose continues to serve and promote service through all aspects.
